MORE TRIANGLE ANSWERS

Bridge problem No. 340, by S. C. Kinsey, the dance of the four queens, had a number of twists to it in the defense, but all of them could be met by proper discarding on part of Z. Here is the distribution:

♠ 4	♥ 3	♦ 10	♣ 10
♠ 10	♥ 10	♦ 10	♣ 10
♠ 10	♥ 10	♦ 10	♣ 10
♠ 10	♥ 10	♦ 10	♣ 10

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead. Y and Z want all eight tricks against any defense.

The solution is for Z to start with the queen of trumps, which A may either cover or pass. The favorite defense seems to be to pass and the best discard for B is a small spade.

Z, being left in the lead, follows the queen of trumps with the queen of hearts. Y must overtake this queen with the ace, so that the lead will pass to Z. Z then picks up A's king. B has to make another discard on this trick.

As B cannot afford to unguard the hearts or the spades, his best play seems to be to give up the king of diamonds, as A still protects that suit.

Z discards a small diamond. When Y leads his last trump B is in trouble. If B keeps two spades Z can make two after Y has made the ten of spades, as Z will discard the diamond, keeping only the queen for a reentry.

If B lets go a heart Y can make two more heart tricks and force another discard from B, and at the end Z will be left with two queens, both good for tricks.

If B keeps the hearts Y makes the jack of hearts while he is in the lead, and Z discards a spade, leaving himself with the queen and another diamond and the spade queen. This allows Y to make a trick with the ten of diamonds, which Z allows to win, and then to lead a spade, discarding the losing heart on the queen of diamonds.

If A covers the first trump lead, Y wins with the ace and picks up A's eight of trumps at once, so as to get an immediate discard from B, before starting the hearts. On these two trump leads B must make up his mind whether to keep the king of diamonds or unguard the spades.

Y will lead two rounds of hearts, ace first, so as to retain the lead, no matter what B does, and will go on and make a third heart if B has unguarded that suit. If B keeps the hearts, Y will lead a third round of trumps.

At this stage Z is down to two guarded queens, and B's discard will show Z which suit to keep, the king of diamonds being out of the way and Y still in the lead to make the small heart if B discards that suit on the third trump.

Here is something from a composer who has not been heard from for some time, but whose problems always command attention of the readers. There seems to be a tacit understanding among the aspirants for the honor list that any position submitted from Prescott, Ariz., will be looked into very carefully, even after the solution has been found.

CHICKEN ENDING.

The twin problems No. 340 and 342a formed an excellent finish to the summer training course for beginners and should furnish some of the cracks with a few valuable hints as to the management of the Old Fourteenth.

The distribution of the pieces in the first problem, No. 340, was: Black men on 1, 2, and 23; king on 27; white men on 5, 8, 29; king on 27; king on 27. Black to play and win. Here are the moves that solve, as they actually occurred in crossboard play:
